THE ALABAMA CLAIMS.

England owes various citizens of the United States about thirteen millions of dollars for damages caused by the operations of the Rebel cruiser Alabama. These claims belong to merchants, to insurance companies, and to shipowners in various parts of the country.

The proposed proceeding is ill-judged. The question is political and international as well as pecuniary. It is not for individuals to negotiate upon such a matter with the Government of a foreign country.

The administration of General Grant, weak and remiss as it has been in almost everything, has nowhere been weaker or more remiss than in its treatment of this subject. The whole matter might long ago have been disposed of and the money paid to the claimants, if we had had a President and Secretary of State adequate to their duties.

Let the Alabama claimants insist on his adopting a more sensible course. Let them urge upon him the example of England in her selection of the members of the great mercantile house of Baring Brothers to come to the United States in 1841 for the arrangement of the northeastern boundary dispute.

"THE SEASON."

Certain slight, significant hints tell us that "the season" is beginning—the time when social life all over the country closes in on itself, shuts the doors, gives itself up for the cooler months to the incubation of whatever new folly or wholesome good it means to bring into the world.

There are peculiar reasons, too, why the present season should be noted and its symptoms reported. Certain diseases and abnormal phases of social life were never more suggestively thrust into view than during the last few months, both in this country and England.

It is largely responsible for the state of morals which results in baby-farmers in England and female Thug-doctors in New York. Society is, after all, under the control of woman; it is her public expression of certain ideas—the garb she chooses for hospitality, love, friendship, marriage.

Now it is from thoughtlessness more than viciousness that women have thus belittled and dressed in gaw-gaws the solemn verities left in their keeping; and because, too, women by real repentment and culture have left the foremost places in society to those whose wealth was their only qualification to hold it.

CONSTITUTIONAL REFORM.

We are pleased to observe that the public sentiment in favor of a constitutional convention is fast assuming the shape of a popular demand. The conviction has become general that radical changes in the constitution of the State are imperatively required by the exigencies of the times.

There is some difference of opinion in reference to the reorganization of the judiciary establishment. It seems to be generally agreed that the Supreme Court, as at present organized, is inadequate to the wants of the people. It is said that the court is overburdened with business—that the five judges perform more labor than ought to be, but we leave the suggestion of the remedy to persons skilled in the administration of the law.

The great evil which challenges public attention is special legislation. It is the fruitful source of bribery and corruption in all its forms. If the people of Pennsylvania would recover the good name of the Commonwealth, sadly tarnished in late years by venal and profligate legislators, the power to legislate specially, or otherwise than by general laws, will be entirely withdrawn from the General Assembly.

The Convention of 1838, acting on the idea then much in vogue that the General Assembly was the guardian of the Treasury, committed the election of the Treasurer to the Legislature. It was not contemplated that the General Assembly would become so corrupt as to lose the confidence of the people and make the office of which they were to be the guardians an article of merchandise.

We think too that the number of members in each house should be considerably increased. It may be possible to corrupt one hundred persons in public place, but it will be found very difficult to corrupt six hundred. The increased expense consequent upon the addition of one hundred and fifty to the Senate, and say four hundred to the House, would not be great; and if it were considerable, there are times and circumstances in which the wisest economy requires a liberal expenditure in advancing public interests.

THE AURORA BOREALIS.

Closely following the earthquake, we have been visited with an auroral display of an unusual and beautiful character. The exhibition, which has been widely observed throughout the country, has continued for several nights, but was most brilliant in this vicinity on Monday night and Tuesday morning.

The peculiarity of all these displays, like that at New York, consisted in the bright crimson hue of the spurs or brushes of light. Sometimes, indeed, the coloring changed to a uniform dull red, as if it had been the fringe of a vast but distant conflagration; but the ruddy spears of flame would soon return, and easily realize to the imagination the fears of by-gone generations, who saw in the articles to these strange sights.

Modern science has suggested, without conclusively proving, various causes for the aurora, but the frequent and harmless character of the displays, their common characteristics, and the explanation of other once mysterious natural phenomena, prevent the "northern lights" from longer exciting fear. Of the various solutions, that of Professor Olmstead is perhaps the most plausible.

He considers the aurora to be due to nebulous matter, like that which furnishes material for meteoric showers, or the zodiacal light. The light, he thinks, is caused by the friction of the earth in plunging, with its atmosphere through this matter, which, being partly metallic, thus gives rise to the concurrent magnetic phenomena. Like other theories on the subject, this is open to objections, although possibly to fewer than the rest. A theory which shall be accompanied by absolute demonstration is yet to be discovered.

WANT OF DECORUM IN THE COURTS.

We fear that our courts are falling off in the practice so essential to the dignity which belongs to the seat of justice—that of respecting the bench and maintaining courtesy between counsel. We have had some painful evidence recently of a disposition to render our courts contemptible by challenging the right of judges to sit in certain cases, alleging as a reason that they were influenced by corrupt motives or disqualified by political partisanship to award a fair trial.

If there is any place more fitting than another where dignity and self-respect should be maintained it is in a court of justice. It is here that men look for the calm judgment which is to protect their rights and defend them from the wickedness of the evil-doer. Scenes like these to which we refer, therefore, are a public scandal. They have a demoralizing influence in the community, not only in our own city, but all over the country, wherever the full and graphic reports of the Herald are read, detailing these passages of words between judges and counsel.

Some of the daily newspapers seem to be thoroughly dumfounded by the returns of the recent election in this State. The Philadelphia Day, for instance, sets down the majorities for Randall, Acker, Getz, Storm, Haldeman, Meyers, Spear, Sherwood, Griffiths, Foster, and McClelland in the radical column, and gives the majorities for the rest of the Congressmen elect to the Democrats. It gives Creely, independent, elected in the Second district, 4735 majority, when the official returns show but 925, and though placing him under the Democratic head, explains in a foot note that the majority set opposite his name is that of the radical candidate for Sheriff in his district! It places B. F. Meyers, elected in the Sixteenth district, in the radical list, and gives him 1611 majority, but takes particular pains, in another foot-note, to inform the public that "the figures for the Sixteenth district represent the average Democratic majority over local officers," and that "Mr. Meyers' majority over Mr. Coates is 15," when there was no Democratic majority at all in the district on local officers, but a radical majority of nearly 100. It places Negley, of the Twenty-second district, in the Democratic column, and sets down his majority at 458, but, in still another foot-note, enlightens the reader by declaring that the figures for that district "represent the Republican majority, counting Negley, Republican, and Frew, Reform Republican, against Hopkins, Democrat, Negley's majority over both was 1840, over Hopkins, 3212." Another explanatory paragraph should have been added to show why Negley is entitled to Frew's vote, in the judgment of the editor of the Day. The footings of this remarkable arithmetical show the Democratic majorities to be 20,724, and the radical majorities 22,576, completely contradicting the statement in the beginning of the article that "the footings show a Republican majority of 4148." Perhaps we ought not to find fault with the Day's table, as "all is well that ends well."

Next we have the Philadelphia Bulletin publishing the official returns, in which Creely's majority is set down at 925, Dickey's at 231, Meyers at 15, and Scofield's at 601. This is followed by an article which gives Creely 4735 majority, Dickey 2341, Meyers 1611, and Scofield 501. This article is copied from the Harrisburg Telegraph, and purports to give the official vote. The readers of the Bulletin have doubtless puzzled their brains in vain in attempting to reconcile the contradictory figures of the two tables.

All this is quite amusing. But when the agent of the American Press Association deliberately telegraphs us the editorial of the Harrisburg Telegraph copied into the Bulletin, as a matter of news, this joking of the Philadelphia statisticians on the subject of election returns begins to pall upon our taste. That indolent and indignant might have saved himself the trouble of sending us by telegraph an article the fallaciousness of which we had exposed the day before. We shall look, in a day or two, for our answer to the Telegraph to come back to us from Philadelphia via the Pacific and Atlantic line.
